KAMS DREW THE:BLANK

Purple Streaks Yet Undefeated--Mailes do Puns.

Take off your hats to Captain Bill Hampton. This is the lad who did the work and strung the Kams to the tune 9-0. Every inning Captain Bill looked larger to the Kams and when the ninth inning came round he looked as big as Diamond Head. Hampton went to the ball grounds with a few choice ones up his sleeve and the assortment that he handed out kept the lads in blue guessing all the way. Just one scratch hit was chalked up in favor of the Kams, and this was of the shady kind.

Of course, there were others there besides Hampton, and although he deserves all that is handed him, there were eight other lads who came in for | $ their share of the applause, for they all worked to win and helped advance each other around the path for runs. The idea of high batting averages was forgotten and all that was thought of was runs. Even Bob White forgot that sign on the fence and attempted to bunt and although he was unsuccessful the spirit was there. Kia was the king pin with the willow; he had a few base hits stowed away in that bat of his and he proceeded to unload them early in the game and the only thing that he did not get was a home run. He hit for a single, double and three sacker. Bill Van was it in the field-he took all that came his way, and they were very numerous at that.

Reuter was not as effective as usual and was found all through the nine innings. He did not seem to have the usual amount of speed behind his ball. His usual strike outs were few and far Wilder went to third. He was retired between. Some costly errors were made by the Kams that were responsible for hit ball to Desha. The Kams took their balloon ascension in the eighth when five Elks crossed the plate.

In winning this game the Elks take the first series without losing a game. They have deserved to win, as they have played the game all the way. They have been strong with the stick and have worked well together both in the field and at the bat. It might be that some team will get them in the second series, but it will only be with the hardest kind of work.

The Colts dropped another one to the Wasps in a poorly contested game of ball. The game was won and lost in the very first inning. The Mailes took the field and at once began to hit the ball hard and before the Colts knew what had struck them five of the green shirts crossed the pan on errors by the Puns fielders. In their half of the first the Puns piled up four runs on timely hitting and a flash of base running. It was thought that the Puns would win this game but they went on the field in a somewhat weakened condition and that old luck which has seemed to follow them for two seasons still clings to them. Several times they had men on bases but failed to score on poor base Lemon, L. 3 0 0 0 0 running. They would not take that Desha, ss. 0 0 0 3 necessary chance that means runs.

After the first innings both teams went off into dreamland and had good long pull at the pipe. The Colts were the first to come to and Geo. Desha became desperate and stole home in the sixth. The Mailes brought one man home in the seventh and won

ELKS 9-KAMS O.

The Kams were the first up but no man passed first base. The same reception was handed the Elks in their half of the first. In their half of the second after Wilder had worked his base by the free route. Kia hit one up against the board in left garden and on trying to reach home on a ground

Moore drew a pass to first in the third; he stole second and went to third on Evers's long fly to right. Hampton was the next man up and the Kams all came in looking for that bunt. The bunt was there, but just over the third baseman's head. It was a pretty play and did the trick. Moore reached home without a struggle. This started the run getting. In the fifth Hampton hit safe, went to second on a wild throw and crossed the pan on the third baseman's error of Cogswell's daisy cutter. Score: 2-0. In the seventh the Elks were there with more runs and it was Bill Van who brought Hampton and Evers home with a beaut over third. The eighth was a knock out punch to the Kams. Kia was first up and poked the sphere for three sacks. White the next man up delivered the goods and brought Kia home. Grady drew a base on ball and then Reuter made two errors on ground balls, Grady and Moore both scoring. Evers and Hampton scored in rapid succession. Score:
